Appeal...

Some individuals with common objectives and aspirations came together to form a group called 'Aai' ('Mother') to fight the common enemy the state of being mentally challenged. Hand in hand, we are marching forward overcoming whatever obstacles that come our way. We have been on this path for the last two years, and have come closer together to call ourselves a family.

We are grateful to many factors in society for their invaluable help they extended in cash or kind. It is with the support of such generous people that we have achieved some of our objectives. The recognition of our efforts by society makes us tick and strive. We are quite aware of the fact that we have just begun our journey, and our destination is distant. All the same, many happy moments of small wins wait for us on the way.

The mentally challenged children are dependent on others for one or more reasons. They need to be trained and made self-reliant enough to lead as normal a life as they possibly can. They need a particular therapy and a little medication. The question of caring for and looking after such children turns into a formidable menace once their parents depart from this world. And this is where we brace ourselves to fulfill our pledge of paying back a social debt.

Of course, this herculean task is not a one-man job, nor is it a short-term goal. We, therefore, appeal to you to join us in our endeavor.

THANK YOU!
